Szachty is many ponds, which were built at the turn of the 19th and 20th centuries, during the construction boom, due to the activity of the nearby brickyards, which extracted raw material for the production of bricks in the area. The brickyards ceased training in the 1970s, the excavations filled with water, creating ponds, and the surrounding areas were taken over by vegetation. Szachty is an exciting example of a valuable green area with many ecosystem services.
